Transitioning to EMV credit and debit cards is a daunting task for any financial organization, large or small. EMV chip cards — also simply known as smart cards or chip cards — are cards that contain an embedded microchip. This transition has created even more challenges because of the sheer number of financial institutions now requiring EMV cards and as a result, the traditional lead times have greatly expanded – in some cases up to months for card delivery.

IdentiSys is a supplier of EMV chip cards to banks, credit unions and third party processors, offering a quick turnaround on printing, full personalization and/or fulfillment. Experienced in EMV specifications and profiles with each of the main chip providers, IdentiSys can produce and deliver a broad range of financial EMV chip cards, as well as support the changes in the financial card industry in the process.

Quick, Quality EMV Cards

We can offer you the largest diversity of chips, milling and embedding, initialization and pre-personalization, personalization, dual interface, technical support and EMV consultation...all this, with a typical turnaround after proof is approved of 5 – 10 days.

Chip Certifications

Through our card suppliers, we offer most major chip authorizations (chips and key management) to make this transition and continued card printing/production easy for you including:

- G & D
